

Corrocoat Launches New Website

In early February 2010 Corrocoat launched its new and improved website. Designed to provide practical and relevant information about our products and services the website is easy to navigate and provides a wealth of information relating to technical data, case studies and MSDS's for the most common Corrocoat products.

A dynamic graphic clearly shows the real benefits of the Corrocoat ECR glass flake verses other glass flake products and ceramic bead fillers. Why not see for yourself by visiting us at <http://www.corrocoat.com.au>

If you would like access to our technical data area just complete the contact form on the website and request a password in the comments box. A client login will be emailed back to you.

Meet the New Guys

Alan Wenlock

Alan has been involved in the coating for over 30 years and is well known throughout the industry. Alan is making a valuable contribution to our sales team and will no doubt be calling on you in the near future. If you just can't wait to catch up with Alan email him on:

alan@corrocoat.com.au and he will be happy to make an appointment to meet and assist you with any corrosion issues you have.

Jimmy Adamlu

Jimmy recently joined us from the pipeline inspection industry. He has an extensive experience in managing major projects, especially in the Oil and Gas industry.

Jim recently completed the Corrocoat UK technical and product training course and is well placed to help you with any applications you have:
